Road to Bravery and Success

I am Asmita, a 14-year-old living in Achham. I study in class 10 and live with my family of five. Our primary source of income comes from traditional farming. Our family's modest piece of land barely yields enough to sustain us throughout the year.

Amid these surrounding, I used to have an extremely shy personality, hesitant to speak in front of elders and reluctant to ask questions in the class. Also, my family's financial constraints made it difficult for me to access basic education supplies. This led to a steep decline in my confidence since my assumption of others perceiving me as poor got the best of me.

However, a turning point came in my life when I became registered with World Vision International (WVI) Nepal's Sponsorship Programme at the age of seven. This provided me with opportunities to participate in various awareness-raising events organised by WVI Nepal. I also became a member of Rupantaran (a life skills group) which played a significant role in transforming me into a more positive individual. These sessions equipped me with the ability to prioritise my needs, be aware of harmful social issues including those affecting children and develop leadership skills.

Asmita (standing in green shawl) facilitate Rupantaran session to adolescent girls and boys

With my newfound confidence, I began organising community awareness events, participating in school extracurricular activities, assisting my siblings with their studies and helping my parents with household chores. I also shared the knowledge gained from Rupantaran Classes with my friends.

My dedication towards education improved, resulting in regular school attendance and significant progress in my studies. A moment of immense pride for me was when a local NGO recognised my leadership abilities and appointed me as a peer educator to facilitate their Rupantaran classes. I now work as a peer educator in the NGO's Rupantaran sessions in my community, where I am known for my talents and dynamic personality. This opportunity not only allowed me to contribute to my community but also earn some income to manage my educational expenses independently.

I feel that my journey has been unstoppable towards success and there has been no turning back since then.

STORIES OF TRANSFORMATION

Nurturing Health and Hope in the Community

52-month-old Riya resides in a small hut with her family of seven. Their modest existence relies solely on her father's labor, which falls short of meeting their basic needs. The family's financial struggles resulted in Riya's malnutrition, evident in her frailty and a weight far below the norm for her age.

A visit to a health center diagnosed Riya as severely malnourished at 50 months, weighing a mere 9.5 kgs. Malnutrition not only impacted her weight but also led to a reduced appetite, making her more susceptible to infections. "I felt so sad, and I didn't know what was happening to my daughter," Riya's mother recalls. Additionally, poor personal hygiene and sanitation contributed to diarrhoea.

Recognizing the dire situation, Riya was registered with World Vision International (WVI) Nepal's Sponsorship Programme. A growth monitoring volunteer identified Riya's malnutrition at 52 months, weighing 9.7 kgs. Faced with this distressing reality, Riya's mother enrolled herself and her daughter in Positive Deviance (PD) Hearth session.

The PD Hearth session proved transformative as Riya's mother gained valuable insights into preparing affordable and nutritious meals at home. She discovered that the required ingredients were readily available in their locality. Further enhancing their capabilities, Riya's mother participated in a kitchen gardening training. This empowered her to cultivate fruits and vegetables in their small garden, ensuring a fresh and local supply for the family. The positive outcomes were evident as Riya gained 600 grams after the initial 12-day PD Hearth session and an additional 800 grams after 28 days.

Riya's mother along with other PD Hearth participants learn about kitchen gardening

Continuing the PD food regimen at home, Riya's mother witnessed a reduction in Riya's illnesses. The malnutrition diagnosis gradually improved from severe to moderate and eventually to light. Riya's appetite improved, and she adopted proper handwashing techniques, contributing to her overall well-being. "I feel so much better and calmer now that my daughter is getting healthier", says Riya's mother.

Positive Deviance (PD) Hearth, a behaviour change programme, consists of 10 to 12-day practical education session called 'Hearth' led by a trained volunteer, where mothers of malnourished children learn the importance of and process to prepare super flour (nutritious food made from local grains), poshilo jaulo (rice and pulse mixed with vegetables or even meat).

Beyond Riya's individual progress, the programme success resonated within the community. Families inspired by Riya's transformation sought to replicate the success in neighboring communities.
