World Vision

Health

World Vision works with communities, governments and partners to improve child health. Through preventative measures such as good nutrition, breast-feeding, hygiene and vaccinations, communities can increase the chance that their children will grow up healthy and able to reach their full potential.

Education

World Vision engages with teachers, schools, caregivers, and communities to improve learning outcomes in education, to build children's confidence, and to teach them values-based life skills. We work to ensure that all children have access to the quality education required to create independent, productive adult lives.

Livelihoods

World Vision helps families to increase their assets through increased and diversified household production, vocational training, financial know-how, and market accessibility. Opening doors to economic opportunities leads to increased livelihood stability, improved nutrition, better health, and greater educational opportunities for children. In the end, families are able to create long-lasting security for their loved

Child rights and protection

World Vision works closely with children, parents, communities, government, partners, and the Child Protection Action Network (CPAN) to promote child rights and child protection. Through community organization; conducting different types of trainings, orientations; by printing and distributing posters and banners, etc., World Vision increases awareness of issues important to the well-being of children.

Water, Sanitation and Hygiene (WASH)

Good water and sanitation systems translate into healthy children and economic empowerment. World Vision works with communities to dig wells, set up pumps and construct latrines, as well as to impart WASH related knowledge and skills to families and communities.

HIV and AIDS response

Through its SHAPE Project, World Vision works to reduce the impact of HIV and AIDS through prevention, care, and advocacy. We work with communities and faith leaders to mobilise help for affected and at-risk orphans and other vulnerable children, and to prevent further spread of the disease.
